

The above view is looking from Sohier Road along the left side of the building. The parking on the left is a small parking area that will serve visitors, the health/dental clinic, and the BevCam studio (located at the far rear corner of the four story structure). Further down you will see a prominent entrance that will lead to the auditorium and field house. To the left of the parking area are our athletic fields (baseball, field hockey, soccer, and outdoor track).

To the right of the image is the main entrance to the building, which faces Sohier Road. The first floor has guidance and administration offices at the entrance. Above those offices stretches our Library Media Center on the second floor, and above that space on the third and fourth floor are science labs.

The space that this new building will occupy is today's lower parking lot.

This is a view of the same area, but standing further back near the track. It is what will be seen from parts of Herrick Street. Notice the slight incline at the front of the building as one moves toward Solar Now. To the far left is the current field house, giving a good perspective of how prominent the four story structure will be.

This view is what you will see as you enter the school entrance from Sohier Road. The driveway brings visitors to the front of the building and will also be the dropoff and pickup area for buses. There is visitor parking to the left of this image, and the drive circles around for exit and also allows exit to Herrick Street. The far end of this drive looks out to the athletic fields. The main parking areas for students and staff, the parent dropoff/pickup area, and the main entrance for events in the auditorium, cafeteria, or field house are all located to the right of this image. Notice that there is a slight slope to the land, not the sharp dropoff that currently exists.

This view is from Sohier Road at the base of the Solar Now field. It shows the entrance and gives a better sense (to the far right) of the location of main parking areas for students and staff. The parent dropoff/pickup area will be on the drive alongside the facility, and the main entrance for events in the auditorium, cafeteria, or field house is partially shown between the trees on the right.
